Project Narrative

Liberty University was looking to expand their women's swimming and diving team, as well as add a men's swimming and diving team and water polo team to their aquatics program, but their current facilities were not adequate to allow them to do so. They envisioned a new facility dedicated to growing their aquatics programs and hosting larger scale meets.

The facility contains a 50-meter pool and a diving well with a three center line diving platform, as well as support spaces, including team and locker rooms for both home and visiting athletes, two training rooms, a wet classroom, and a meet management area for use when hosting events. It also shares a hydrotherapy room with two HydroWorx therapy tubs, and a 7,000 square foot weight room with the Indoor Track facility located next door.

The mezzanine level provides permanent seating for around 400 spectators, with the ability to hold another 800 using temporary bleachers, and a small concessions area. An office suite provides space for the track and field coaches and staff to work, as well as a place to host prospective student-athletes.
